Within an hour, the Pentagon outside Washington, D.C., also took a direct, devastating hit from an aircraft. The fiery crash collapsed one side of the five-sided structure, raising fears that the seat of government itself was under attack.

Authorities were trying to evacuate those who work in the twin towers. Thousands could be dead or trapped and injured, said a high-ranking police official.

About 50,000 people work at the Trade Center.

More than 20,000 people work at the Pentagon.

American Airlines said its two aircraft were carrying a total of 156 people.

United Airlines said two of its aircraft were hijacked and crashed, with a total of 110 aboard.

The networks reported that hundreds of burn victims have been brought to New York hospitals and said victims covered in white sheets were lined up outside one hospital. About 10,000 emergency workers were at the scene. As many as 200 firefighters were reported missing, ABC reported.

People flee as one of the World Trade Center towers collapses this morning in New York.
